| Clients | We partner with governments, aid agencies, NGOs and companies, taking on their fundamental challenges Our aim is always to make lasting change to the essential systems and organisations that benefit people's well-being and prosperity. Our work can be funded directly by international governments, multilateral and bilateral donors, such as the World Bank, European Commission, United Nations agencies or regional development banks. Or, as developmental and commercial interests increasingly overlap, by philanthropic and private sector organisations. Whoever the client, we pride ourselves on delivering outstanding results time and again. Our experience of working with multiple donors as well as governments and the private sector means our clients benefit from innovation and ideas that may otherwise not be shared. We understand the challenges each face and have the know-how and ability to overcome them. We can also bring together the required stake-holders to ensure the success of every project – whether it involves joint donor funding or PPP initiatives. | | |

Grant Aid for Concession Project Development

Many infrastructure projects in developing countries are operated with suppressed usage fee, so private investment at commercial level is difficult. Grant Aid for Concession Project Development is used for developing mechanism to provide necessary funds for facilities, equipment and other services necessary for such projects and create appropriate business profits. We procure development projects on behalf of the recipient government or project implementation agency as a procurement agent. Currently we are engaged in PPP projects such as "Medical and hazardous waste appropriate treatment project in Nairobi Kenya", "Waste to Energy project in Davao City, Philippines" and "
